Origin

Thomas Hooker of Anne Arundel County may be connected to the men of this same name who appear in records of the Virginia Colony. Thomas Hooker is listed as being transported by John Bradenton who claimed land in James City County, Virginia in 1636 [1]Thomas Hooker is also listed among 40 others as transported by Sir Francis Wyatt who received a grant of 2000 acs. on the south side of Rappahanock R. in 1648 [2]

Thomas Hooker arrived in Maryland before 1653 with his wife, Joane. He is listed in Maryland Patent records as transporting himself and his wife, and in the same record he also claims credit for transporting ten other people. There is no record of him bringing the five children mentioned in his will into Maryland, so one may assume they were born in Maryland. [3]

Hooker's birth year is based on the fact that he was married by 1653 and a fairly wealthy

This meeting place was the site of the first general meeting of Quakers led by George Fox in Maryland in 1672 and the Quaker burying ground is an historic Maryland site today. Another parcel of 25 acres out of Brownton was sold to John Frances Holland and 50 acres to Joseph Owen. [4]

Origin

Thomas Hooker of Anne Arundel County may be connected to the men of this same name who appear in records of the Virginia Colony. Thomas Hooker is listed as being transported by John Bradenton who claimed land in James City County, Virginia in 1636 [1]Thomas Hooker is also listed among 40 others as transported by Sir Francis Wyatt who received a grant of 2000 acs. on the south side of Rappahanock R. in 1648 [2]

Thomas Hooker arrived in Maryland before 1653 with his wife, Joane. He is listed in Maryland Patent records as transporting himself and his wife, and in the same record he also claims credit for transporting ten other people. There is no record of him bringing the five children mentioned in his will into Maryland, so one may assume they were born in Maryland. [3]

Hooker's birth year is based on the fact that he was married by 1653 and a fairly wealthy man in a position to import servants into the Maryland colony. Thomas and Joane were the parents of 3 sons and 2 daughters (mentioned below) as determined by his will.

Notes

Microreproduction of original records at Hall of Records, Annapolis, Maryland.

Volumes 17 and 36 are missing from the Hall of Records collection.

See Elisabeth Hartsook and Gust Skordas, "Land Office and Prerogative Court records of colonial Maryland," for an inventory of these records through 1776. Some indexes noted in the inventory are not on the film.

The Patent Series from the Maryland Land Office also contains some other land records and some proprietary and court records for the same period.

Includes indexes for many volumes: some at the front and some at the end of the volumes.

The published indexes refer to the liber numbers, not the volume numbers.

Series Description
Electronic index to certificates of survey and patents, created from a card index, for land in Anne Arundel County. The white cards refer to patented tracts and pink cards refer to unpatented tracts. Entries on the former give name, tract name, current county, patent date, acreage, and citation(s). Entries on the latter give name, tract name, current county, survey date, acreage, and citation. Arranged alphabetically by county where the lands are currently located and then by tract name. The index includes 5,322 entries and provides references to the following Land Office records: (Certificates, Unpatented, AA) in series S1212 and (Patent Record) in series S11. The patent records themselves do not contain plats. RANGERS IN COLONIAL AND REVOLUTIONARY AMERICA

The origin of the ranger tradition lies in the seventeenth century wars between colonists and Native American tribes. In the original concept rangers were full-time soldiers employed by the colonial governments to "range" between fixed frontier fortifications as a reconnaissance system to provide early warning of hostile raids. In offensive operations they became scouts and guides, locating targets (such as villages) for task forces drawn from the militia or other colonial troops.

By 1675-1676 a new element appeared in the ranger concept. Benjamin Church (1639-1718) of Massachusetts developed a special full-time unit mixing white colonists selected for frontier skills with friendly Indians to carry out offensive strikes against hostile Indians in terrain where normal militia units were ineffective. In fact, his memoirs published in 1716 by a son are the first American military manual.

The traditional ranger usage reached its peak during the French and Indian War. Robert Rogers of New Hampshire organized a corps of New England woodsmen as full-time Provincials directly under British military auspices and paid out of British funds. The companies supported British operations against French Canada on the New York and St. Lawrence River fronts. They occasionally operated with friendly Indians, but more commonly served the British as a substitute for traditional allies. Astute British commanders assigned regular British officers to Rogers' Rangers for training in wilderness warfare which they could then pass on to their normal regiments.

Veterans of this corps played a major role in the Continental Army during the Revolution, including Major General Israel Putnam and Brigadier Generals John Stark and Moses Hazen. The tranditional ranger usage had only limited application during that later war. Various state governments did employ such units for local frontier security, but the Continental Army formed very few, in part because George Washington considered frontier security to be a local responsibility and focused national military forces on opposing regular British and German units in a formal battlefield context.

Other than the regiments and separate companies of riflemen from Pennsylvania and the states to the south, who really functioned as light infantry rather than rangers, the Continental Army only formed two functional ranger units. Knowlton's Rangers, a provisional three-company unit of volunteers from Connecticut and Massachusetts line regiments under Lieutenant Colonel Thomas Knowlton, came into being during the late summer of 1776 at New York City. It performed excellently in a light infantry role at the battle of Harlem Heights on 16 September 1776, but Knowlton suffered a mortal wound. Two months later the remnants of the corps fell into British hands when Fort Washington surrendered. Captain Nathan Hale of this corps gained immortality as a brave but singularly inept spy.

Whitcomb's Rangers started as a similar provisional unit on the Lake Champlain front in 1776. It gained permanent status as a two-company force on 15 October of that year and provided reconnaissance capability to the Northern Department until 1 January 1781 when it disbanded at Coos, New Hampshire, as part of a general reorganization of the Continental Army. Most of Whitcomb's men came from New Hampshire and the Hampshire Grants (now Vermont).

Other units in the Continental Army either used the term ranger in their designation or were commonly called rangers, but did not serve in that capacity in the traditional sense. South Carolina and Georgia each raised mounted ranger units in 1775-1776, but when they became part of the Continental Army during the summer of 1776 they transformed into mounted infantry. In fact over the period of several years the 3d South Carolina Regiment gradually evolved into a line infantry regiment. When Washington authorized Gist's Additional Continental Regiment in 1777 he intended to man it with a mixture of Caucasian southern frontiersmen and members of the Cherokee and related tribes. Washington wanted to use it as a vehicle for insuring tribal support--its Native American members would become hostages for the good behavior of the rest of the tribe--as well as a combat element. The regiment never recruited the Indian component, and changes in British operations led to the transformation of the white elements into normal infantry.

Contrary to myth, the light troops in the Continental Army overwhelmingly followed European doctrinal concepts. The four regiments of light dragoons raised in 1777 as a reconnaissance force derived from European developments in light cavalry during the eighteenth century. Only during a brief period in the winter of 1777-1778 did the Continental Army experiment with the idea of employing them as a shock force.

Light infantry companies added to the regimental organization of each Continental Army infantry regiment in 1778 also had European roots. The American leadership stressed the ideas of Maurice, comte de Saxe and the comte de Guibert, two leading French military theorists, which advocated cross-training every soldier to perform both line or light infantry roles to allow mission flexibility. Light companies normally assembled into provisional battalions at the start of each year's campaign and acted as a special strike force in traditional battlefield roles, not as a reconnaissance element.

The Continental Army's other light troops sprang from a relatively new European concept not the native American ranger tradition. During the Seven Years' War most European armies developed partisan corps (also called frei korps). Originally fielded by the French to counter Austrian irregulars recruited in the Balkans, they filled a unique niche by providing deep security around an army in the field or carried out raids behind enemy lines. The Continental Army authorized several of these formations in 1777 and 1778, primarily as a vehicle to employ European volunteers who could not be inserted into existing regiments without provoking major arguments over rank, or because of language barriers. "Light Horse Harry" Lee of Virginia (the father of Robert E. Lee) raised the only American-born unit under this concept. Each partisan unit in the Continental Army, however, had a unique organizational structure.

The 1781 reorganization of the Continental resolved the issue of light troops by bringing greater centralized control. The light infantry companies continued under their existing practice of forming provisional battalions for each campaign season. The four regiments of light dragoons transformed into combined arms Legionary Corps composed of four mounted and two dismounted troops; the various partisan elements consolidated into two Partisan Corps, each with three mounted and three dismounted troops. The structure of the legionary corps focused on providing close reconnaissance and security patrols for a field army although various operational and manpower problems hampered most of the regiments from achieving complete success.

Only Elisha Sheldon's 2d Legionary Corps (a Connecticut unit serving in 1781 in the West Point-Westchester County zone) fully exploited the possibilities of the combined arms structure. The two dismounted troops armed and equipped as light infantry provided a defensive element to protect the camp from enemy surprise attack, and also provided a base of fire around which the mounted elements could maneuver. They also became very adept at employing the mounted troops in a raid designed to provoke a British pursuit which would end with a classic "L-shaped" ambush.

The 1st Partisan Corps under the Frenchman "Colonel Armand" (the marquis de la Rouerie) and the 2d under Lee both drew assignments in Major General Nathanael Greene's Southern Department. Armand's remained a shell during 1781, but Lee had great success in the Carolinas carrying out those specific missions for which the 3-3 mix of mounted and dismounted troops had been designed. In formal battles it provided unblemished flank security, but it was even better in rear battle by conducting deep raids against British logistical bases. Lee particularly shined when his regulars stiffened the irregular local forces of leaders like Francis ("Swamp Fox") Marion. The mix of mounted and dismounted men gave it somewhat greater staying power in independent firefights while also allowing rapid forced marches (each light infantryman held on to a dragoon's stirrups).

None of the light units employed by the Continental Army carried out a training role as Rogers' Rangers had during the French and Indian War. In fact, Major General Friedrich von Steuben wrote a separate drill manual for them in late 1780. He and Washington intended it to be the companion to the famous "Blue Book", but operational factors prevented its publication and distribution.

Samuel's Hope

Samuel's Hope on Gun Powder Road (Bellona Ave. 1845). Drawing by Gordy Callison.

Samuel's Hope was a 500-acre parcel granted by Lord Baltimore in 1694 to Thomas Hooker. In 1716 Benjamin Carr, planter and smithy, purchased 100 acres for "15 pounds current money of Great Britain" and shortly thereafter settled on this site. Acquired by Solomon Bowen in 1752, it remained in his family for over 100 years as a prosperous farm and mill seat. Construction of the residence can be traced to the pre-Revolutionary War period. Bellona Avenue traces its origins to 1734 as the entrance to Samuel's Hope from the Britain Ridge Rolling Road (York Road). The neighboring Bellona Gunpowder Mills (1800) on Jones Falls and the invasion of the railroad (1832) made for a unique, if somewhat acrimonious history. The site pictured here in 1840 shows the daily run of the Baltimore and Susquehanna Railroad to York, Pennsylvania.

Quaker Records of Northern Maryland

Births, Deaths, Marriages and Abstracts from the Minutes

1716-1800

Henry C. Peden, Jr., M.A.

FORWARD

Quakers (or Society of Friends) first settled in Maryland in 1658, primarily in southern Maryland. Those records through 1800 have been abstracted by the author in Quaker Records of Southern Maryland: Births, Deaths, Marriages and Abstracts from the Minutes, 1658-1800. On Maryland's Eastern Shore, the first Monthly Meetings were established between 1672 and 1698. Abstracts of the Eastern Shore Quaker records are included in the series, Maryland Eastern Shore Vital Records, 5 volumes, by F. Edward Wright. They are also contained in Kenneth Carroll's Quakerism on the Eastern Shore.

As a sequel, the Quaker records through 1800 in northern Maryland have been abstracted for those meetings held in Baltimore City and the counties of Baltimore, Harford, Carroll, Howard and Frederick. These records begin in 1716 for the most part, although there are references within the records as early as 1674.

Gunpowder Monthly Meeting records begin in 1716 and include Patapsco and early Elk Ridge Meetings. Baltimore Monthly Meeting separated from Gunpowder in 1792 and its records begin that year (although there is a record of deceased members which goes as far back as 1674) and include Patapsco and early Elk Ridge Meetings. Little Falls Monthly Meeting records begin in 1738, and include Forrest Meeting early in its history, but there are no monthly minutes until 1815. Deer Creek Monthly Meeting records begin in 1761, with some references back to 1741, and refer to meetings at Bush River and Susquehanna (or Bayside).

Pipe Creek Monthly Meetings consisted of the two Preparative Meetings, one called Pipe Creek near present-day Union Bridge in Carroll County and Bush Creek Meeting in Frederick County. Both Meetings were initially formed as Preparative Meetings of Fairfax (Waterford) Monthly Meeting in Loudoun County, Virginia. The first Pipe Creek Monthly Meeting was held at Bush Creek in 1772, alternating thereafter between that site and Pipe Creek.

This book is based on the earliest records at the Maryland State Archives up through 1800 (and in some cases to 1820 if the children's dates of birth started prior to 1800 and ended thereafter), as follows, with the microfilm numbers shown:

in individual folders. Therefore, in this book, the number after each entry refers to the folder number of each paper at the Maryland State Archives, rather than the page number.

For Charles County, Maryland, adjacent to St. Mary's, Lorena S. Walsh has created a census for 1660 that estimates total population and the number of taxables, household heads, male inmates, women, and children. Historic St. Mary's City has a biographical file for seventeenth-century St. Mary's County residents made from all the available documents. This file does not catch a large but unknown proportion of people because the St. Mary's County Court records burned in 1831, but it probably includes most men alive in 1660 who were, or became, heads of households. {2}

{2} Lorena S. Walsh has published some of this census and discussed its implications in "Staying Put or Getting Out: Findings for Charles County, Maryland, 1650-1720," William and Mary Quarterly, 3d Ser., 44 (1981), 89-103, but most of what we needed remains unpublished. We are grateful to her for sharing these results, which appear throughout this appendix.The Biographies of Seventeenth-Century St. Mary's County Residents is a paper file created and maintained by the HSMC History Office. The countable elements of this file are in a D-Base 4 computer file at the History Office in Annapolis and at the Department of Research at HSMC.

Maryland Genealogical Society Bulletin; Fall 1992 Vol 33 No 4; CHARLES COUNTY DEPOSITIONS, A-G; by Robert W. Barnes. These depositions were abstracted by Semmes, and may be found in one of the boxes of his Genealogical Collection at the Maryland Historical Society. Many of the depositions were taken from Land Commissions recorded in the regular land records of Charles County. Some, but by no means all, of these depositions were originally published by Cregar and Johnston, and later by Peden, but these abstracts often give biographical data missing from the other versions. The page number given maybe the page on which the land commission begins, and not the page on which the deposition is actually found.

Mr George Lewis

Dear Sir

I was absent when the document arrived which you sent me in regard to the bounty land. You have misunderstood me about the war in which my father served it was not in the war of 1812 but in the war of 1776 with England he served in the revolutionary war at the same time George Washington did. Strange as it may seem my father was a revolutionary soldier and I was a minor in 1855. he was born in Virginia and I think in Louisa. He was about sixteen then the war commenced he volunteered and served during the war was wounded in one of his ____. I don't know which one. He had brothers older than him who also served. One was killed I don't know his name the other ones name was Golden who lived several years longer than my father. After the war father and his brother were in Newberry and Sartenberg (sic) districts I don't know which they lived in last. He came from South Carolina to Huntsville Walker Co Texas about 1844 where he died in 1839. [TRANSCRIBER'S NOTE: she reversed the dates, he came about 1839 and died in 1844] his brother remained in SC Father drew his last pension at New Orleans just before his death my mother was fathers second wife he was about fifty one or two when he married Susan Hooker my mother she was in her sixteenth year. I have no family records there are some persons living in Huntsville who knew my mother well. I think there is one man living there who knew my father and if you think you can get anything from him I will write to him find out what he knows about my father. I think is from South Carolina. There was a sketch of fathers life and his brothers published in Godeys Ladys some where between the years 1854, 58 but I am not able to get it. I can prove to your satisfaction I am the daughter of James Tinsley and was a minor in 1855. Charles E Hooker a member of Congress from Mississippi is a son of my mothers only brother Zadoc Hooker. I don't know what command father belongs to or what battles he was in I suppose there is some record of it some where. I think if there ever was any one who deserved help from the United States it is the children of revolutionary soldiers. I need help badly I have my three children yet to raise the oldest is only thirteen.

Wishing you can do something for me I will wait with great interest

PREFACE

The purpose of this book is to identify the Quaker families that lived in South Carolina and Georgia between 1666 and 1900, to tell something about how they lived and how they were different from their non-Quaker neighbors, and to provide some basic genealogical data on them. It is the author's desire that this book will stimulate additional research about this important but little known group of Southern Quakers.

Acknowledgements are due to the late Henry J. Cadbury, who first encouraged my study of South Carolina Quakers; to Willard Heiss of Indianapolis and Professor Hugh Barbour of Earlham College, who gave valuable direction to that study; and to the members of Central Philadelphia Monthly Meeting of Friends, who helped nurture my faith as a Quaker; and to the staffs of the South Caroliniana Library of the University of South Carolina, the Quaker Collection of the Guilford College Library, the Friends Historical Library of Swarthmore College, the Quaker Collection of Haverford College, the Lilly Library Quaker Collection of Earlham College, the Quaker Collection of Wilmington College, the Methodist Historical Collection of Wofford College, the South Carolina Historical Society, and the South Carolina Dept. of Archives and History; and to many other institutions and individuals too numerous to mention who provided assistance, information, and suggestions for this book.

Fairfax Monthly Meeting of Friends was established in 1744, and was set off from Hopewell Monthly Meeting Frederick County, Virginia. The first meeting of Fairfax Monthly Meeting was held at Fairfax Meeting house on the 26th of 4th month 1745; it was agreed that the monthly meeting should be held in alternate months at Fairfax Meeting house and at Monoquesy Meeting house (the latter in Maryland). Fairfax Preparatory Meeting and Monoquesy Preparative Meeting had previously belonged to Hopewell Monthly Meeting, but were now assigned to the new Fairfax Monthly Meeting which accounts for the fact that the earlier records of these two preparatory meetings were kept in the books of Hopewell Monthly Meeting after the latter's organization in 1734. The records of Fairfax Preparatory Meeting prior to 1734 were kept in the books of Nottingham Monthly Meeting, Cecil County, Maryland, which was set off from New Garden Monthly Meeting, Chester County, Pennsylvania in 1730. However, many Friends who migrated into Virginia from Pennsylvania and New Jersey left their certificates at New Garden Monthly Meeting before the organization of Hopewell Monthly Meeting (1734) after which their certificates were directed to Hopewell Monthly Meeting, regardless of where in Northern Virginia they took up their new abodes. Monoquesy Meeting for Worship was established in the Monoquesy Valley, Maryland, just north of the Potomac River in 1726, their first meetings being held in the homes of the several members, but principally in the home of Josiah Ballenger, who had come to the Monoquesy Valley, with his brother, Henry Ballenger, from Salem, New Jersey in 1725. James Wright had also settled in this valley about the same time. Monoquesy Meeting was set up by New Garden Monthly Meeting, with approval of Chester Quarterly Meeting, Pennsylvania. The earliest records of Monoquesy Meeting were kept by New Garden Monthly Meeting until 1730, after which they were kept by Nottingham Monthly Meeting until 1734 when Monoquesy Meeting was assigned to the newly established Hopewell Monthly Meeting. Therefore, to trace the members of Fairfax Monthly Meeting back to their origins, it is necessary to examine the records of Hopewell Monthly Meeting, Nottingham Monthly Meeting and New Garden Monthly Meeting, but, unfortunately, the first books of minutes and marriages of Hopewell Monthly Meeting were burned in a fire at the house of the custodian in 1759; only the first book of Births and Deaths was saved from that fire.

In 1934 the Hopewell Historical Association made an exhaustive search for "leads" to the minutes and marriage records of Hopewell Monthly Meeting, gathering much data from the minutes and records of other meetings, especially in certificates of removal, connecting the early Hopewell members with various meetings, and thus compiled a large historical background for these early members. They published their findings in a valuable book entitled "Hopewell Friends History" 1734-1934, printed by the Shenandoah Publishing House, Inc., Strasburg, Virginia. In this book, they carried the marriage records down only to 1830, although the certificates of removal were brought down to 1890. However, we have brought all Hopewell Minutes, records and certificates of removal down to 1940 for this volume of our Encyclopedia of American Quaker Genealogy.

About 1752 Philadelphia Yearly Meeting prepared accounts of the founding of many of its constituent meetings, which were edited by Samuel Smith, of New Jersey, and which were included in his History of Pennsylvania, for the Pennsylvania Archives. The Register of Pennsylvania, edited 1831 by Samuel Hazard, Vol. III, p. 134, contains the following information: (quoted from Hopewell Friends History, p. 54)

"About the year 1725, Henry Ballinger and Josiah Ballinger, from near Salem, in West Jersey, and soon after them James Wright, William Beals, and others from Nottingham, settled in the upper parts of Prince George's County, Maryland, near a large creek called Monoquesy (Monocacy). About the year 1726, they applied to New Garden Monthly Meeting for liberty to hold a meeting for Worship on First Days, which was granted, and held at the house of Josiah Ballinger and others until the year 1736, when a piece of ground was purchased and a meeting house built, which is called Cold Spring Meeting House, where meetings are still kept". (This Cold Spring Meeting House became Monoquesy Meeting House)

"About the year 1733, Amos Janney from Bucks County, and soon after divers other Friends settled about 40 miles lower in Virginia than Opeckon, who obtained leave to hold a meeting for Worship on First Days, which was held at the said Amos Janney's and other Friends Houses till the year 1741, when a piece of land was purchased, and a meeting house built thereon, called Fairfax, where meetings since are held twice a week."

Fairfax Meeting house was located on the east side of the Blue Ridge Mountains south of the Potomac River, and opposite Monocacy Meeting house, which was north of the said river, in Maryland. Hopewell Meeting house was on the west side of the Blue Ridge Mountains, some forty or fifty miles from Fairfax Meeting. A town was later built at the site of Fairfax Meeting and called Waterford. Fairfax Meeting was in Fairfax County, Virginia until 1757 when Fairfax County was divided leaving Fairfax Meeting in Loudon County, Virginia, the new county set off from Fairfax County.

When Fairfax Monthly Meeting was established and set off from Hopewell Monthly Meeting in 1744, a line was established between the two monthly meetings which was roughly on the top of the Blue Ridge Mountain Range; thus, all Friends living east of the Blue Ridge Range were automatically transferred to Fairfax Monthly Meeting. Since this transfer was without certificates of removal, we have no way of knowing exactly who all of the Friends were as no list of these Friends was made at the opening of Fairfax Monthly Meeting. Friends who were then members of Monoquesy Preparatory Meeting and of Fairfax Preparatory Meeting simply met together on the 26th of 4th month 1745 and proceeded to organize Fairfax Monthly Meeting. At this opening meeting, representatives from each of the two preparative meetings, "being called, they appeared". Temporary overseers of the new monthly meeting were appointed to serve "until further notice"; Samuel Harris and Jacob Janney were appointed overseers for the men's meeting of Fairfax Preparatory Meeting, and Mary Janney and Elizabeth Norton were appointed overseers for the women's meeting; Jane Hague was appointed clerk for the women's meeting; Henry Maynor and John Wright were appointed overseers for Monoquesy Particular Meeting; Francis Hague and John Hough were also early overseers. Amos Janney was appointed elder in 5th month 1745, for Fairfax Preparative Meeting and also as clerk of Fairfax Monthly Meeting, being the first clerk appointed for the men's meeting; Jacob Janney was later appointed clerk. The first marriage in Fairfax Monthly Meeting was that of Henry Brown and Esther Harris, who announced intentions of marriage at the first meeting held. Other marriages accomplished at Fairfax Monthly Meeting during 1745 were:-Richard Williams and Prudence Beals; William Kirk and Mary Brown; Herman Cox and Jane John; Oliver Matthews and Hannah John; Richard Kemp and Susannah Piggott; many marriages were accomplished 1746 to 1750, etc; there were also a great many marriages "out of meeting", some between members and others married to non-members, for which act all parties who were members were promptly disowned, but the majority of those disowned made satisfactory "acknowledgments which were accepted" and the parties reinstated in membership.

Goose Creek Meeting for Worship was allowed by Fairfax Monthly Meeting, and set up on the 30th of 8th month 1745. This meeting was located near the South Fork of Goose Creek where the town of Lincoln, Virginia, is now located. This meeting was allowed to set up a preparatory meeting of its own in 1757. It was established as a monthly meeting and set off from Fairfax Monthly Meeting in 1785 and is still flourishing now, in 1946.

A meeting for Worship was allowed as an indulged meeting in 1768 and was called South Fork Meeting, the meetings being at first held in the house of Isaac Votaw. This meeting was located about 6 to 7 miles south west of Lincoln, Virginia (the site of Goose Creek Monthly Meeting. It was on or near the South Fork of Beaverdam Creek. It was reported, by Yardley Taylor in 1853 as "still active". The old burial ground near the village of Unison marks the site of the meeting house. When Goose Creek Meeting was established as a monthly meeting in 1785 South Fork Meeting was assigned to it. The members of South Fork Meeting were pretty "worldly" and caused great "concern" to both Fairfax and Goose Creek Monthly Meeting. Many of the young men of South Fork Meeting "drank to excess", had many fights, gambled, indulged in "horse racing", and were lax morally; many were disowned.

By 1783 a great many members of Fairfax Monthly Meeting had located homes in Alexandria, Virginia; they applied for and obtained leave to hold meetings for Worship and were allowed this privilege 23rd of 8th month 1783 and the first meetings were held at the house of John Butcher; Joseph Janney, John Hirst, John Hough and Solomon Dixon were appointed to "set" with Friends there; a meeting house was built at Alexandria in 1786; a year later, a preparatory meeting was allowed and Alexandria Friends were allowed to hold regular afternoon meetings on First Day; in 1802 Alexandria Monthly Meeting was established and its members set off from Fairfax Monthly Meeting.

PIPE CREEK Meeting, Maryland: An indulged meeting was allowed by Fairfax Monthly Meeting at Pipe Creek, Frederick County (now Carroll County) Maryland in 1756; in 1759 Pipe Creek was allowed a preparative meeting of its own; in 1767 Pipe Creek Monthly Meeting was established and its members were set off from Fairfax Monthly Meeting, at which time all members of Fairfax who lived within the verge of Pipe Creek Preparative Meeting were transferred to Pipe Creek Monthly Meeting, as usual, without certificates of removal. Pipe Creek Meeting was located about 40 miles west of Baltimore, Maryland, and a half mile from Union Bridge Station

GAP MEETING (originally called Potts Meeting): In 1759 Fairfax Monthly Meeting allowed an

At this time (and my opinion may change) I THINK the Hooker line in Randolph was Quaker in origin and PROBABLY came from Maryland.
1-- First at the Archives in Raleigh I found the following (and I am not sure it's the same line but it's a good example of Quaker migratory and records):

I think that the Robert b. 1796 you were talking about Sharon was probably Jacob's son, naming him after his brother, my Robert or father.

I have quite a bit on this Robert, his will & a land deed & of course the census records. This information was given to me by Jeanne Anderson who went to Randolph Co. NC to do some research. Those mentioned in his will was his wife, Rachel; his son William Clarkson Hooker; his youngest daughter

Sarah Louise Hooker; his two sons Odom & Benjamin (he only gave them $.50).
None of the other children are listed. They could have been dead. I would think that if they were alive he would have at least mentioned them since he only gave Odom & Benjamin 50 cents he would have done the same for the rest of the kids if they were alive. But I don't know really if they had to be listed if they were alive.

It has been suggested that Jacob's wife, Sarah's maiden name was Odom and she was a sister to my Robert's wife Hannah. This again has not been proven but it would be a reason why this Robert named a son Odom. Possibly Jacob named a son Odom also. On the 1790, 1800 Jacob had 3 sons, we know Eli is one and Robert is probably the second but I don't know who the 3rd would be.

He also had 3 daughters in 1790 living with them and 2 in 1800. It is quite possible that they had more children but gone by 1790.

An Allen H. Hooker b. abt 1830 was found in a listing in Confederate Civil War records. He enlisted in Rowan Co. 4 July 1862, survived war, prisoner &

nothing more. This does give a Rowan County connection.

I also have a Robert Hooker who was on the 1771 tax list in Surry Co., NC.
I don't know if this is my Robert or not.

I could try to do interlibrary loan, worked in our local library for 7 years, last 3 in ILL. Now it is all changed and they really don't go out of their way to find books like we used to do, but I will try.

Linda

It would appear that this Thomas and wife Hannah were in Gunpowder MM, Md. and were just listed in the Quaker Index, Fairfax, VA. It states that they were received into membership 1758 after being "under care"--whatever that means. Then it looks as though they "returned" in 1760 and were granted certificate to Gunpowder several months later. In the NC Quaker Index: 1776 a Hannah appears in SC with children Edward, Mary, William, and John, "received on certificate from" Gunpowder, Md. Then in 1768 Edward Hooker is listed as "disowned for married out of unity". In 1793 Judith Hooker is listed "reported married out of unity".

This Thomas Hooker and wife went from VA to MD - is that what this says? Then returned or vice-versa? this is really hard to follow. I do know that people went from VA to MD and vice-versa and from MD to DE and PA

- I have a Register line which went from MD to DE and from MD to PA - they were Quakers.

Are all these Randolph Co.,NC records civil records? - not Quaker ones??

I see SC Quaker records from MD but not NC Quaker records?

What is your HOOKER connection?

You'll probably have better luck if you post your message on the separate site for the surname giving a specific married couple of interest and the approximate dates of their vital records. Also, the genealogical custom is to put surnames in all capital letters, to clarify and emphasize the surname. Don't put everything in capital letters.

Bush River Monthly Meeting
An Introduction

During the last half of the eighteenth century four principal centers of Quakerism arose in South Carolina and one in Georgia. These were in Kershaw, Marlborough, Newberry and Union Counties, South Carolina, and in Columbia (now McDuffie) County, Georgia, The earliest of these settlements appears to have been in Kershaw County, S. C, about 1750. Fredericksburg Monthly Meeting, also called Wateree, was set up in this county about 1755 or earlier. The monthly meeting was laid down about 1782, and the meetings for worship disappeared not long afterward. No records of Fredericksburg Monthly Meeting are known to be in existence.

Bush River Monthly Meeting, in Newberry County, S. C, was established in 1770; Wrightsborough Monthly Meeting, in Georgia, 1773; Cane Creek Monthly Meeting, in Union County, S. C, 1799; Piney Grove Monthly

NOTE TO DOUG AND DORIS: This concludes a set of notes about the Hooker family that I copied years ago, from material I found in the McClung Historical Collection in Knoxville, where I used to go to do a lot of my research.
The McClung Collection is a wonderful collection of genealogical material.
Since my notes were made years ago, it seems safe to assume that a survey of the MD material they have would produce other items that are not in my notes. Doug, please share this material with Dale.
